Introduction

The following bibliography lists the total output of Walter Scott's publishing department. An attempt has been made to include all titles with a Walter Scott imprint in either separate publications, joint publications, or works published on behalf of some-one else (usually 'vanity' publishing for the author).

There were some significant moves in the company's history which can be used to date publications. For example, the London publishing office moved from 14 Paternoster Square to 24 Warwick Lane, Paternoster Row, in July 1885 and moved again in October 1894 to 1 Paternoster Buildings (which appeared on title-page imprints as Paternoster Square). The firm became a limited company in 1892 changing its title to Walter Scott Limited, and finally changed its title to the Walter Scott Publishing Co Ltd in 1901. These and other changes are summarised in Table 1.

The entries are arranged in chronological order by year and then alphabetically by author within each year. Anonymous works, along with anthologies and similar compilations without an obvious author, appear in the same alphabetical sequence under their titles. Each entry is given a number followed by a heading line consisting of the author's name (if known), the short title, and the date of publication:

635 ARNOLD, Matthew Strayed Reveller [1896]

A large number of Scott's books were issued without any indication of the date of publication. Dates have been assigned on the basis of the advertising for a particular book together with the form of the imprint and printer's colophon (see Table 1) or other internal evidence. Conjectural dates appear in brackets.

The heading line is followed by a quasi-facsimile transcription of the title-page:

THE | DEVIL'S WHISPER. | BY | REGINALD BARNETT, | *Author of "Police
Sergeant C 21."* | [rule] | LONDON: | WALTER SCOTT, 24 WARWICK
LANE, | PATERNOSTER ROW.

The title-page transcription is followed by a statement of the pagination. Unnumbered pages at the beginning of a book are given in brackets. The first numbered page is then noted followed by the final page of the preliminaries but without distinguishing any other unnumbered pages in this sequence. Similarly, the first page of the text, in brackets if unnumbered, is followed by the final page of text without noting intervening unnumbered pages. If either the preliminaries or the text ends on a recto followed by a blank verso, the verso is regarded as the final page. Unnumbered advertisements printed on leaves conjugate with text are noted in brackets after the text sequence. Any advertisements which have been added in separate gatherings or leaves are ignored. Eg:

Pagination: [i-v] vi - xxviii [1] - 276, ads [277-284]

The pagination is followed by a transcription of the printer's colophon with a note of the page number (in brackets if unnumbered) on which the colophon is found:

Colophon: p [288] Printed by WALTER SCOTT, Felling, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

If a title was included in one or more of Scott's series of books the names of the series are then listed. Sometimes, but not always, Scott added numbers to series titles. A title did not necessarily keep the same number in subsequent Scott listings. Scott's numbering is provided:

Series: Brotherhood, Cambridge, Emerald, Million 52, Oxford 27 and 39.

The characteristic physical features of each series are described after the main bibliography (pp xx-xxx). If a title was not included in a series the binding is described briefly:

Binding: Blue cloth. Top edge gilt. Black eps.

The next line in an entry is a statement of Scott's advertising for that title in the Bookseller, Publishers' Circular and Reference Catalogue of Current Literature (London: Joseph Whittaker, 1875-1932):

Ads: 1st Bksl 9 Jan 1891, p 26; last Refcat 1902.

The word 'advertising' has been used to mean either a display advertisement by Scott or an announcement of the title by the Bookseller or Publishers' Circular. The first and last advertisements are noted. The date of the first advertisement cannot be taken as being equivalent to the date of publication but in most cases the two dates seem to have been close together. Thus, the advertising dates give an indication of how long the title remained in print. If a definite publication date is known this appears at the end of the advertising statement following the abbreviation 'pubd':

Ads: 1st Bksl 9 Jan 1891, p 26; last Refcat 1902; pubd 25 Jan 1891.

The advertising statement is followed by selected locations for the title. If a particular copy has not been examined by the compiler, the location is followed by the letters NS (= not seen). Photocopies of title-pages and colophons have been obtained for all NS copies. For a title in more than one series each copy which has been examined is assigned to its series. Where possible National Union Catalog library symbols have been used:

Locations: Uk, UkCU (Kenilworth); NLW (Brotherhood); ViU (NS).

which indicates that three copies have been examined, two of which (in the British Library and Cambridge University Library) belong to the Kenilworth Series, and the other (in the National Library of Wales) belongs to the Brotherhood Series; the copy in Virginia University Library has not been examined by the compiler.

Notes are occasionally added at the end of an entry, usually to amplify bibliographical points or to mention previous or later editions. The original Tyne Publishing Company had come into being by buying out an earlier Newcastle publisher, Adam and Company. Some titles from the Adam or Tyne Publishing lists became Scott publications, and these titles are mentioned in the notes.

Variant copies and later printings are described after the main entry. The variants are listed in chronological order, sharing the serial number with the main entry but being distinguished by a letter of the alphabet. Thus it should be remembered that the entries under a given year may not represent Scott's output for that year since a reprint which appeared, for example, in 1910, of a title first published in 1886, will be listed with the 1886 entry:

210 (a) ANDERSEN, Lucy Copenhagen and its Environs 1888

[main entry]

(b) ANDERSEN, Lucy Copenhagen and its Environs 1889

as (a) except

... ITALY." / THIRD EDITION. | LONDON: | WALTER SCOTT, 24
WARWICK LANE, | PATERNOSTER ROW. | 1889.

In addition to books and pamphlets, Scott published four periodicals and these are listed at the end of the main bibliography (nos 1071-1074).

After the main bibliography there are separate listings of titles in series including a description of the distinguishing features of each series. In addition there are indexes of authors, titles, and of editors, translators, and contributors. Based on Scott's advertising in the Bookseller, Publishers' Circular, and the Reference Catalogue of Current Literature, two further lists are included: those titles which were probably published but for which no copies have yet been discovered, and those titles which were announced but do not seem to have been published.

Professor Joel Myerson and Merrill Horton (both from the University of South Carolina) provided valuable help, Professor Myerson with the Walt Whitman entries, and Merrill Horton in tracking down Scott copies in North America. Mr Edwin Gilcher willingly shared his knowledge of the bibliography of George Moore and took great pains to answer my questions. My colleague David Stoker was always ready to listen to my problems and suggest solutions; by sharing his knowledge of computing and giving hours of his time, the effort of compilation was significantly reduced. Mrs Ann Hill took on the formidable task of keyboarding the first draft of all the entries. Above all, it has been librarians throughout the world who made the bibliography possible. The work could never have started without the help of the legion of librarians who eagerly and cheerfully answered my first enquiries. Cheerful replies almost inevitably led to a flood of other enquiries. I am most grateful that librarians never seem to apply Richard Strauss' advice to conductors (never smile encouragingly at the brass) to bibliographers.

Ads: 1st Bksl 3 May 1884, p 528; last Refcat 1921.

Location: UPB (NS).

Notes: Adam title. Tyne title. The non-Scott title-page in vol 4 is a cancel and is probably similar to those discussed in Turner Studies in Bibliography, (41) 1991, 323-31.

Besides the four volumes above, the work was published in a variety of formats: as a single volume (and, according to Refcat 1906, in one volume with New Border Tales); in 12 monthly volumes at one shilling, advertised between 25th Nov 1887 and 6 Dec 1888; or 12 'double volumes' at two shillings and six pence, in Refcat 1894; in 24 volumes, volume 20 was advertised 5 July 1889; or 'uniform with the Camelot Series', Bksl 9 Jan 1889. As a result incomplete and mixed sets survive.

143 (a) AURELIUS Antoninus, Marcus Meditations 1887

THE | MEDITATIONS | OF | MARCUS AURELIUS | Translated from the Greek | BY JEREMY COLLIER |
Revised, with an Introduction and Notes | BY ALICE ZIMMERN. | [rule] | LONDON | WALTER SCOTT, 24
WARWICK LANE | PATERNOSTER ROW | 1887.

Pagination: [i-vii] viii-xxviii [7]-212, ads [213-218].

Colophon: None.

Series: Camelot Series 15, Scott Lib 19.

Ads: 1st Bksl 6 Apr 1887, p 394; last Refcat 1921; pubd 25 Apr 1887.

Location: Uk.

Notes: The gatherings in some titles in series are signed with numbers, rather than letters, and the signings appear to run in sequence from one title to another. Here the collation is [257]⁸ 258-264⁸ 264 [sic]-270⁸ but the text and pagination runs through without any duplication. Thus the second gathering signed 264 is a mistake.

356 (a) Fabian Essays in Socialism [1890]

FABIAN | ESSAYS IN SOCIALISM. | BY | [in two columns] G. BERNARD SHAW. SYDNEY OLIVIER. | SIDNEY WEBB. ANNIE BESANT. | WILLIAM CLARKE. GRAHAM WALLAS. [end of two columns] | AND | HUMBERT BLAND. | EDITED BY | G. BERNARD SHAW. | LONDON: | WALTER SCOTT, 24 WARWICK LANE. | NEW YORK: 3 EAST 14TH STREET, | AND MELBOURNE.

Pagination: [i-iii] iv-xxii [1]-234.

Colophon: p [234] THE WALTER SCOTT PRESS, NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

Ads: 1st Bksl 5 Sept 1890, p 979; last Refcat 1913.

Binding: Paper covers (see Notes).

Location: InCW (NS).

Notes: Laurence BB7c. There is a proof copy of the title-page in Uk. It seems likely that (a) came before (b) because the paper covers of (a) are still in the state about which Shaw complained in his letter to Will H. Dircks (Bernard Shaw: Collected Letters, 1874-1897, ed Dan H. Laurence, London: Max Reinhardt, 1965, p 260), while the covers to (b) have been amended to accommodate Shaw's complaints. Scott published the paperback issue in August 1890 and immediately began negotiations with the Fabian Society to be allowed to issue the book bound in cloth; permission was granted and the cloth bound issue appeared soon after 24th September 1890.

Books in Series

The following pages contain complete lists of titles in each of Scott's series with descriptions of the distinctive features of each series. The series titles are listed as entry numbers from the main bibliography followed by (1) the earliest and last advertisements for that series which appeared in the Bookseller, Publishers' Circular or Reference Catalogue of Current Literature, (2) the average page size for a volume in the series, (3) a description of any distinctive typographic features, and (4) a description of the binding styles. Scott's own descriptions of the bindings taken from the advertisements are entered first, in chronological order, showing the style changes as they were announced. Scott's descriptions are followed by descriptions of actual copies.

The company made good use of their ownership of the manufacturing plant. Control of the whole production process meant it was relatively easy to introduce new series styles. Bindings in particular could be changed to suit requirements and several series were offered in a range of binding styles with a corresponding range of prices. The reprint series (Brotherhood, Cambridge, Emerald, Half-roan, Hero, Million, Oxford, Reward, and Union) were fundamentally one list of titles offered in different bindings in which the printed sheets of a title did not carry any indication of inclusion in a series.

Within any one series variants are occasionally discovered which seem to have arisen because of manufacturing needs, because of marketing strategy, or accidentally.

Variants due to manufacturing needs were caused by the utilization of old stock. In all probability only part of the total number of sheets printed of each new title would be bound. The remaining sheets would be stored until stocks of bound volumes ran low when more copies would be bound from the stored sheets. Occasionally, with slow-moving titles, changes were made to the general style of the series before all the sheets of the first impression had been bound. Measures then had to be taken to salvage the unsold sheets. When, for example, the Camelot Series became the Scott Library it was possible to bind the old sheets in the new style and to hide the evidence simply by removing the Camelot Series half-title leaf.¹ This is what happened with the National Library of Wales copy of Samuel Johnson's Essays (no 242). The first leaf has been removed and pagination begins at page [iii]. Furthermore in this case, the advertisements which had been printed on the

1 In a similar category, but more difficult to explain, are copies which survive with binding styles earlier than the enclosed printed sheets. Examples can be found in the National Library of Wales copy of Malory's History of King Arthur, 1887 (no 125b), and the Kent State University copy of Tacitus Reign of Tiberius, [1904] (no 395b). The Malory has a Camelot Series half-title and a title-page dated 1887 but a spine label printed 'Camelot Classics' and dated 1886; the Tacitus has a spine label printed 'Camelot Series' (the Series changed its name to the Scott Library in 1892) but a colophon dated 1904. Both these books have printed spine labels and perhaps the reason for the anachronistic bindings is that more spine labels were printed than were required for binding copies of the first impressions. It was then thought necessary to use the labels on bindings for later impressions. There are two objections to this explanation. First, with spine labels little more than the size of postage stamps, the decision to use old stock was remarkably parsimonious. Second, in the case of Tacitus, the organisation of the warehouse had to be faultless in order to find spine labels at least twelve years after they were printed. An alternative explanation is that cases were made up in advance with spine labels already in place, but the second objection still applies.

final sheet also had to be cancelled because they too would have revealed that old sheets were being used. The advertisements were originally printed as part of the final gathering on the three leaves following the end of the text. Consequently three disjunct text leaves now remain, held in place by paste alone. After examining copies of other titles made up in a similar way it seems certain that the leaves were removed before, and not after, binding took place.

Variants resulting from marketing strategy can be seen, for example, in Robert Browning's works in the Canterbury Poets (nos 663-665). Browning's works were published in three separate volumes which were sold singly like any other volumes in the series in the standard series bindings. In addition, the Browning volumes were available with photogravure frontispieces either bound in green roan and supplied in a box at two shillings and sixpence, or bound in art linen or white linen at two shillings. Sets of volumes in slip cases could also be bought: any two volumes at four shillings, or all three volumes at six shillings, with frontispieces and bound in brocade.

Despite the foregoing remarks the majority of the books conform to the styles of each series and the above examples are exceptions.

Many of the books produced in the early years of the company included head and tail pieces. Some of these came from the typefounder, Miller and Richards. Examples are found in Allan Cunningham Great English Painters, 1886 (no 109), p [1] ornament No 472 in Miller and Richards catalogue;² George T. Ferris Great Composers, 1887 (no 164), ² Miller and Richards Typefounders Catalogue [for 1873]: printed in facsimile, Owston Ferry, Lincolnshire, 1974.

p [1] ornament No 292; George Herbert Poems, 1885 (no 82), p 250 ornament No 238; [Eva Hope Our Queen [1882-85] (no 5), p 328 ornament No 260.

No. 28.

Only one has been seen. The series was published by Tyne and was advertised for only a short time by Scott. It is possible that Scott was selling old Tyne stock and some of the books were never issued with Scott's imprint. Another reason for their disappearance could be that they were all children's picture books which, because of their treatment by readers, often do not survive. The titles were: Aladin and the Wonderful Lamp; Babes in the Wood; Blue Beard; English History Pictures; Little Bo-Peep; The Milkmaid; New Testament Scenes; Nursery Rhymes; Old Testament Subjects; The Piper and His Cow; Robinson Crusoe; and Ten Little Niggers.

Evergreen Library

This appears to have been a series issued by Simpkin Marshall after Scott went into liquidation. There is an entry in the minutes of the executors of Sir Walter Scott's will which states that sheets of some books were sold to Simpkin Marshall. The books are bound in grey cloth, blocked with the words 'The Evergreen Library' on the front cover and 'Simpkin' at the foot of the spine.

The large number of titles which have not been seen may be due to publication difficulties encountered by Scott. Many of the titles were available from other publishers at the same time as Scott's editions. Despite the problems in copyright which this would have caused, Scott's editions do appear to have been published. Scott continued to advertise all the titles and there are entries in library catalogues for some Scott copies which no longer survive.

Binding: Refcat 1894: cloth gilt, with portrait etched for the series by M. Ad. Lalauze of Paris, 3s 6d.

Notes: The series was published in 1891 by William Patterson of Edinburgh. The Publishers' Circular announcement reads, 'Mr. Walter Scott, who has purchased the series known as "The Treasure House of Tales", will publish a new edition of the volumes in the autumn' but only one Scott copy has been discovered in an Evergreen binding. It seems likely that Scott never published the other three volumes.
